

POETRY.

ON A NAVAL OFFICER BURIED IN THE ATLANTIC.
BY REV. H. F. LYTE.

There is, in the wide, lone sea,
A spot unmarked, but holy;
For there the gallant and free
In his ocean bed lies lowly.

Down, down within the deep
That to triumph bore him,
He sleeps a sound and pleasant sleep,
With the salt waves washing over him.

He sleeps serene, and safe
From tempest or from billow,
Where the storms, that high above him chase, Scarce rock his peaceful pillow.

The sea and him in death
They did not dare to sever;
It was his home while he had breath;
'Tis now his rest for ever.

Sleep on, thou mighty dead!
A glorious tomb they've found thee—
The broad blue sky above thee spread,
The boundless waters round thee.

No vulgar foot treads here;
No hand profane shall move thee;
But gallant fleets shall proudly steer,
And warriors shout above thee.

'And when the last trump shall sound,
And toils are sundered,
Is the morning sun from the wave thou'lt bound,
To rise and shine in heaven.

A Series of Lay Sermons on Good Principles and Good Breeding. By the Ettrick Shepherd. 12mo.
pp. 330. London, Fraser.

To the un-reverend James Hogg the public is indebted for this very un-parsonlike series of eleven soi-disant sermons, so sound of sense, so naturally pious, and so simple in respect to some subjects and opinions, that we should not wonder to see him elevated to the episcopal bench, or made a D. D. or a Dean at least.

We readily pass over his "Good Principles," sermon i., and come to his "Young Women," sermon ii., where, as elsewhere, we find some very acute and applicable advice. Ex. gr.

"The means of improvement in regard to your sex are chiefly reading and conversation. The first gives you knowledge, and the latter teaches you how to use it; and much circumspection is requisite in both cases.
Now, I must confess that I am seldom pleased with the books which I see in the hands of young ladies whom I esteem and for whose well-being I am anxious. These circulating libraries are ruin for you, as from them you get so much that is nothing but froth and foam. I can never feel pleased when I see one of my own volumes in a young lady's hand whom I like, and yet I cannot say very much for them either: only thus much I can say, that these dreary stories about ghosts and apparitions and persecutions are not half so apt to poison the mind as those of another class which I shall describe.
Ladies' novels, for instance, with the exception only of those of two at present living, are all composed in a false taste, and at the same time convey so little instruction, that it would be better for you never to open them.
What benefit can a young mind receive from contemplating scenes, which, though interesting, have neither nature nor probability to recommend them? You may see, perhaps, virtue rewarded and vice punished; but while these necessary acts of justice are painted, you see nothing of the reality of life, none of the characters with which you are acquainted; and it is far from being a safe amusement for young ladies to have their feelings and imaginations wrought upon by the fictions of romance, even though the book should hold up nothing but the fairest sides of fair characters. The mind by these is apt to become too highly toned for the common incidents of life; and the readers of such works are apt to be wound up to such a pitch as to be precisely like those who never enjoy themselves save when they are under the influence of intoxication. Another bad thing in these books is, that they always bring virtue into trying and critical situations, so that you must have the definition of vice along with the other,—all its modes of attack, and the most insinuating infusion of its poison.
Vice cannot be exhibited in detestable colours when the intention of the author is to make resistance meritorious.
Where there is no allurement, there is no temptation; and it too frequently happens that the worst character in the piece is the most engaging. It is even uniformly so with the greatest and most accomplished novelist that ever was born; and hence, in the mind of a young reader especially, all the distinctions between virtue and vice are broken down. Think, then, what mischief may be wrought in a youthful female mind by such pernicious representations of character. If the agreeable but wicked hero of the piece be reformed, there is a dangerous desire excited to make proselytes; and if he be punished, the tears which should have been shed for his guilt fall for the misfortunes of the guilty. I recommend, therefore, to your attention those works which give a real picture of such characters as have existed in the world, and do exist, both for your profit and amusement; for whenever your author loses sight of nature and probability, you lose all hold of him and interest in his work. It is good to indulge in reading history; for though the incidents are often surprising, and such as one durst not exhibit in a novel, and likewise many of the characters above the capacity of ordinary readers to comprehend, it nevertheless has this to recommend it, that it gives a faithful and true picture of the passions which have agitated mankind, and the events which have resulted therefrom in real life, especially from the ambition of princes and the selfish intrigues of courtiers and flatterers. But in history, though we often see vice successful, it is never aniable; and, from the nature of its composition, and the greatness of its objects, the series of its events, the dignity of the actors, and the issue of all worldly events, which it does and must exhibit, you will review lessons on human affairs well calculated to promote your knowledge and humility. There you see the rapid decay of all worldly grandeur, beauty, and ambition; so that the whole of history, to a contemplative mind, is one huge memento mori—a good lesson still to keep before your eyes. Romances, on the other hand, give a transient and false view of human life; the figures are overcharged with colouring, the whole is intended to please, and there is nothing in the background to teach us that all is vanity. The personages of romance are indeed conducted through most difficult and distressing scenes; their virtue is exposed to the greatest risks, while the art of the author must, at all events, preserve it from contamination. Many delicate sentiments may be introduced, and much heroic love displayed, and when you least expect it, the seas, and interventions of all sorts, which a little while before seemed altogether insurmountable, disappear at once;
the stratagems of rivals, and the opposition of parents, are all exhausted; and the marriage of the hero and heroine closes the grand outrageous fiction. Some of these works may be exceedingly amusing to you, though I confess they never were so to me; but I maintain, that if you read such books, you will never be instructed.
What are regarded as fine sentiments are of no use if arising out of unnatural and improbable adventures; and I farther assure you, on the credit of a poet, that I never knew a young lady the better of her reading when she read for excitement alone."

THE PENNY MAGAZINE.—From the high commendations bestowed upon the Penny Magazine, and its unexampled success in Great Britain, the subscribers were induced to undertake the re-publication of that work in this country. They have completed one volume, containing 376 pages, imperial octavo, and 222 Woodcuts, which they have furnished to subscribers at the moderate price of $2. The unexpected encouragement which they have met with, has now induced them to offer the Second Volume to subscribers at $1 50 cents, containing the same number of pages, and to be executed in a style equal to their first volume.

During the past year, Stereotype Plates of this work, after having been nearly worn out in London, have been imported into New York, and the impressions from those plates sold at $1 50 cents for twelve monthly parts, containing only 516 pages, being 60 pages less than the Boston edition.

The Wood Cuts and Stereotype Plates of the Boston edition, are entirely new, executed by the publishers—who being both practically operative in the two most important departments of the Book Business, (that of Engraving and Stereotyping) they feel confident that they can compete with any foreign manufacturer in their line, as it regards the style of execution and cheapness. They will therefore issue 48 pages on the first of every month, commencing with July.

BOOKSELLERS, PUBLISHERS AND AGENTS are respectfully requested to forward their orders, which will be executed on more liberal terms than any other publication of equal value in America.

COMMERCIAL HOUSE.
No. 14 COMMERCIAL STREET, BOSTON.
JOHN E. HUNT begs leave to inform his friends and the public, that the above House is now open as a Summer Establishment. Having had a long experience in keeping a genteel "restaurant," and eating house, he flatters himself that the reputation which he has gained will ensure him a liberal patronage.

Merchants in the neighborhood of Commercial wharf, Ship Massachusetts, and the numerous business men in that part of the city, are respectfully invited to call and inspect the conveniences and accommodations of the place.
The House has been fitted up for an extensive but private Boarding House. Gentlemen intending to take the Southern Packet, or the neighboring Ships, and Country Traders, will find airy rooms, good accommodations and prompt attention, convenient to their business, and at the same time retired, comfortable, and "at home."

STONE HOUSE!
IN LOWELL.
This elegant Mansion is now open for the reception of Boarders and Strangers. The "Stone House" needs no recommendation to those who have formerly visited it. It stands on the southern bank of the Merrimack River, about a quarter of a mile from the business part of the town, and having a Piazza in rear which immediately overlooks "Pawtucket Falls," and commands a delightful and extensive prospect up and down the River.

No situation in this country combines greater advantages for a Summer residence, or resort of parties of pleasure. To many it will be some recommendation at this season, that excellent mechanical art and power will be found in its vicinity, in the most important and interesting of the Manufacturing town in New England. The lovers of natural scenery will remember its elevated, cool and commanding site, perfectly secluded from the noise and bustle of the town.

The subscriber has taken and furnished the House at a liberal expense, and relying upon considerable experience in his business, and the utmost care and attention, hopes to be able to sustain its former reputation and meet the reasonable expectation of all who may be pleased to favor it with their patronage.

a delightful residence for boarders, especially during the warm charming prospect from its observatory, and the cool and refreshing breezes that distinguish it in summer, render it a very desirable retreat for those in pursuit of health or pleasure.

THURSDAY, JULY 10, 1834.

NOTICE.—The Government of the Washington Society are requested to meet at Concert Hall, THIS AFTERNOON, at 4 o'clock.

Charge of Swindling.—We learn from the New York Transcript, that the firm of Towle, Dunham & Co. was broken up on Saturday last, by the arrest and commitment to prison of two of the partners, Towle and Morton, on a charge of swindling. They had succeeded in obtaining of Samuel R. Steele, of Dalton Mills, in this State, a quantity of printing paper, worth between 900 and 1000 dollars, which they were to sell on commission, and to pay for as soon as sold. Steele drew on the firm in March for $200, and in April his draft came back protested. On or about the 9th of May, they wrote to him, telling him to draw on them again; he did so, and again his draft was dishonored. He then went on to New York, when they gave him two notes for $400 each on a man named Dispard. He asked them who Dispard was—they replied, "he is a speculating man." "Where does he live?" "The directory will tell you." He looked therein, but found no such name. His suspicions as to their fraudulent designs were then confirmed, and he immediately instituted inquiries concerning them, when he found, to his utter astonishment, that they had caused his paper to be sold at public auction, for $1.02 per ream, although they had made out the account current for $3 per ream, on the day of the actual sale, and forwarded the same to him, telling him that amount was placed to his credit in their books. Fresh inquiries elicited further transactions of a nature highly dishonorable to them. Morton and Towle were then arrested, and for the want of bail to the amount of $2000 each, were committed. Dunham, the third member of the firm, is at Vermilion, Ohio, to which place an officer has been despatched to arrest him.

The Democrats of Portsmouth, N. Hampshire, had a glorious time on the Fourth—we copy below a few of their Toasts:—

The Bell of N. H.—It has told its last requiem.—Toss—"Rogue's March."

Benton, Forsyth, and their Associates.—They deserve the thanks of the American people, for the noble efforts which they have made in the U. S. Senate in defence of the Constitution and its legitimate ends, against the assaults of the Swiss corps of the Bank.

Hon. R. M. Johnson.—A fearless advocate of the rights of man.

Hon. Isaac Hill.—An independent republican and honest man. Though treated with contempt by the pensioned parasites of the Bank, the hour will yet come when they will have to do homage to the majesty of virtue.

The Workmen throughout the United States.—May they work to maintain and perpetuate the liberty which our fathers fought for and secured into us, and not only submit to, or countenance the unalienable wrongs.—Let the government take care of the rich, and the rich will take care of the poor.

The State of New Hampshire, whose soil produces berries, and Raspberries; but of all her berries give us Woodbury.

The President of the U. S.—True to the people as the needle to the pole. He cannot be moved, not even by the intrigues of the bargainers, the thunders of the godlike, nor the treachery of the nullifier.

The New Hampshire Gazette says, in speaking of the late outrage upon the Constitution:—

"We men that she be ordered round to Portsmouth. We will engage that the Maine and New Hampshire boys will take care of her, and see that no such outrage will be committed on the waters of the Piscataqua; and, if necessary, we will engage to defend her against all the tory-wigs of Massachusetts en masse."

Guy Rivers is said to be a very clever novel, by those who have read it—the thermometer is too high for us to look into a book, unless it be one of the Harpers' Family Library, such for instance as the last number, containing Dr. Combe's Principles of Physiology, applied to the Preservation of Health, and to the Improvement of Physical and Mental Education—this work is worth its weight in gold, and should be studied in all weathers.

Every man to his liking.—A person in Pennsylvania, who calls himself a white man, has advertised for a colored wife. A gentleman of color, not willing to be outdone in liberality, has published the following in the N. Y. Commercial Advertiser:—

Massa Editors ob de Commerchal Abbertiser.—I hab cum to de conclusion dat de gemmen ob culler mus exclaim to de world dat they too be de friend ob equal rights. De whole universal nashun ob brack people hab become convicted ob dat. I hab therefore determine to 'nounce my dopted country, dat I hab conquer all my prejudices, so dat I be willing to malignate and just as lib narry white woman as any. De ladies will please send in their proposals to de Editor ob de Liberator, post paid. No old Made or Wilder woman wont do—none need apply if she ant young and handsome, and of good health for de sake ob de posterity. I am good skoller in compassium, spellin and riting, and shall giv de preference to white girl ob littary turn, who keeps her person clean and free from smel, because I dont tolerate any smel bout me. Dere is one thing I had to say. None mus apply excep, beside de above qualifications, she hab plenty money for de support ob de family gentely, and beside she mus be in de highest circles, and a member ob de Bobbolution Society, and will giv all de money she has left (after satisfying all de lawful rites ob her husband to de personal property) to dat Society, so de mouths ob gainsayers mus be stopt up.

Post Skrip.—If she hab a pue in Church wid dat good find Tapping, where de Doctor Cox preach bout Bobbolution, or in sum odder place like de Chapel, where all colours can sit mixd up together, so much better, and would hab no 'jections to a daughter or sister ob de officers ob de Anti-Slavery Society. B. P.

Complimentary.—The Portland Jeffersonian, in commenting upon Dr. Graham's Lectures, commences thus:—

"We have nothing to say for the exaggerated pretensions, the arrogance, egotism or vanity of Mr. Graham."

A Sermon, in behalf of the Polish Exiles, will be preached at the Catholic Cathedral, in Franklin street, on Sunday morning next, by the Rev Mr. Curtin. A collection will be taken after the Sermon.

We learn from Washington that the President expects soon to pay a visit to the Hermitage.

Mr. Wilkins will depart on his mission to Russia by the middle of August.

Dividend.—The Directors of the Bank of the United States, on the 7th instant, declared a dividend from the profits of the last six months, of three and half per cent. payable on the 17th inst.

The weather yesterday was not as warm as on Tuesday, by about ten degrees.

POLICE COURT.

Both sides.—Luke Hipsley, a little, decrepit, old gentleman, who some nine years ago, married a soldier's relict, on the other side of the herring pond, and by that means became step-father to a bouncing boy, came to complain against the youngster, for an assault. It appeared that Mrs. Hipsley had received a hurt in her thumb, and it was reported to her beloved son, that the old gentleman did it on purpose, as he had been in the habit of chastising the soldier's widow, whenever it seemed good unto him. Billy did not take much pains to find out the real truth of the matter, but, went to the house, and gave his father-in-law rather a severe basting. In order to increase the enormity of his son-in-law's guilt, the old "un said—"I'm the man what never drinks no harden spirits of no kind; but Billy was three fourths tipsy, and what 'is worse, and I am very sorry to say it, he is a bindle." The defendant, by counsel, rejoined, that the "plaintiff, though he had favored the court with a sanctimonious harangue 'pon temperance and infidelity," belonged to that class of emigrant exiles, of whom it is said, in some lines attributed to a Botany Bay poet—

"True patriots we, for be it understood, We left our country, for our country's good."

On the other hand, it was proved on behalf of the defendant, (by a witness who is a fugitive from English justice, with a reward of £300 on his head, for being concerned in the great Bristol riots and conflagrations,) that the old worthy would say grace before dinner, and break the old lady's head with a pitcher after.—Therefore upon the strength of all these developments, it was decreed, that the defendant should pay a fine of $1.00 and costs, which he very cheerfully paid, with the dutiful remark—"I wish I had given him five dollars worth more, while I was about it."

Anti-bug Feathers.—Thomas Kennedy was caught in the act of carrying off a bundle of junk and rigging, which he had cut from the spars of the Parachute, laying at Commercial wharf. When arrested, he stated that he "wanted a bed cord, and thought that the rigging might be made to answer; and that he intended to chop the junk into small pieces, and put them into his bed, instead of feathers, as that sort of stuffing was very good to keep the bugs out."—Committed for trial at the Municipal Court.

William Hodson, a sailor, required the whole sidewalk to paddle in, as he had a double pressure of steam on. He gallantly dashed aside all lighter craft, till he fell in with a lady and her consort, the former of whom he capsize into the gutter, and about boomed on, without waiting to see if she fendered or righted. Excuse—"I might have had a glass of grog in my head."—$2 and costs.

Hugh Wood, for an assault on a neighbour, was fined $3.00 and costs.—He mistook the complainant for a watchman, against whom he had sworn eternal enmity, and he consequently gave him a severe and instant. Wood averred that the complainant commenced the fracas by biting his finger, which he held up to the inspection of the court, pretty deeply nibbled, adding—"I heard his teeth grate upon the bone."

James Dryden, about a year ago, caused under the Star Spangled Banner, but did not like Uncle Sam's discipline, and made himself scarce, till recently, when he set up the business of boxing on his own hook, and followed it up with such perseverance, that there was not a fighting character in Broad Street with whom he had not had a set-to. A black eye was the only badge of glory he wore on his trial.—3 months in the house of correction.

Destructive Conflagration.—About one o'clock this morning, fire was discovered in the large five story brick building, No 209 Pearl street, four doors east from Maiden lane, and occupied on the first floor by Messrs Doremus, Suydam & Nixon, wholesale dry goods merchants—the second floor by Messrs Bowers & Addams, dealers in the same articles. So rapid had been the progress of the flames within, that before the fire was known without, the entire building was almost instantly enveloped in flames before twenty persons had arrived on the spot. The whole of this building, with all it contained, was soon a heap of burning embers. On the arrival of the engines, so intense was the heat, that it was for some time impossible to approach within playing distance. The building was owned by Mr. Redmond, and was insured—its value was stated at $12,000. Messrs Doremus, Nixon, & Co. were insured for $40,000, which is not near the value of their goods.

The adjoining store east, No 211, also of the same dimensions, was soon in flames, and the four upper stories destroyed. This building was owned by Mr. William Colegate, and insured for $5,000, about one half of its cost. The first floor was occupied by Theo. F. Brett and Doremus, who had an insurance of $10,000. The second floor was occupied by John Rankin, importer of lace goods. A large portion of the goods in the lower story were taken out considerably damaged.

The building adjoining Messrs Doremus, Suydam & Nixon on the west, was a three story store, (No 207.) It was occupied by Revo C. Hance, wholesale dry goods merchant, and the second floor by T. H. Messenger, as an umbrella warehouse. A considerable portion of Mr. Hance's goods were removed to Mr. Coskey's store in Maiden lane—the whole of Mr. Messenger's stock was destroyed. The destruction of this building was caused by the falling of one of the high walls from the adjoining store—the noise of which was distinctly heard by persons in Greenwich street.

We regret to add that a member of engine No 14 had his arm broken in two places, by coming in contact with the brake of No 11 while she was playing.

It is impossible at this moment, to state the actual loss of property. We have heard it stated at two hundred thousand dollars—the lowest sum conjectured is one hundred thousand. We have just ascertained that there was insurance on the property destroyed and damaged to the amount of One Hundred and Fifty Thousand Dollars.—Tuesday's N. Y. Com.

Fire at Philadelphia.—On Friday forenoon, during the rejoicings, a fire broke out in the roof of two three story brick houses, Nos. 34 and 36 North Ninth street, owned by Stephen Simmons, Esq. and occupied by Dr. L. Rodman, and Joseph R. Chandler, Esq. editor of the United States Gazette, which required all the skill of the firemen to extinguish, one of whom was severely injured by a fall under the wheel of an engine.

Counterfeiters Convicted.—At the Circuit Court of the United States held last week at Philadelphia, before Judges Baldwin and Hopkinson, a gang of counterfeiters were convicted, said to be among the most skillful of the craft. Their names are Charles Mitchell, Elisha Drew, James Stewart, Nathan Adams, and Charles Johnson. The court, without argument on the part of the government, sentenced them to the Cherry Hill State Penitentiary. They were defended by Messrs. Rush, Phillips and Lee.

From the Boston Daily Advocate.

"Whenever the Post can prove that the representative from Norfolk District, has knowingly violated the Post office law, we shall be as ready to condemn the act in him as in any other man. As at present advised we do not believe that he has transgressed his rights as a member of Congress, in the use of the franking privilege."

From the Albany Argus.

Violation of the Post Office Law, by a Member of Congress.—The Hon. Wm. Jackson, a Bank M. of C. from Massachusetts, has been detected in the practice of franking to a political friend in the village of Hamilton, Madison county, in this state, large packages of Bank and panic speeches, from the Bank laboratory at Washington, enclosed in separate wrappers, with his name endorsed on each, and wanting only a superscription to give them a circulation, free of postage, to any part of the Union. The circumstances under which this glaring violation of law was discovered, are detailed in the following extract from the Hamilton Courier of the 11th ult.:

"We are informed by the Postmaster of this village, that a gross violation of the Post Office law has recently been detected at his office. A large package of papers arrived at the Post Office on the 9th instant, so packed originally, that only the address on the outside paper could be seen. This package was franked by the Hon. W. Jackson, a Representative in Congress from Massachusetts, and directed to a gentleman in this village, whose name we forbear at present to mention. It seems that the wrapper which fastened the different packages together, had become so worn, that while the Assistant Postmaster was overhauling the mail, the papers composing the large package became loose and fell out, disclosing to view a large number of copies of the speech which Mr. J. Q. Adams did not deliver on the subject of the deposits, neatly folded and wrapped in envelopes, with the words, 'Free, W. Jackson,' written on the corners of the papers, and a blank address, left to be filled up by this servant of the Bank, to whom they were sent, and re-mailed to those persons whom he should select as the proper recipients of such favors."

The same paper adds:—"We understand that this same individual has heretofore received large packages from Mr. Jackson, free, and soon after deposited in the Post Office a number of small packages purporting to be franked by Mr. Jackson, and directed in a different hand from the frank, to different individuals in other places."

No member, we believe, has a right to frank more than one document, or more than two ounces in the same envelope, unless such document shall have been printed by order of congress, nor is a member authorized, but on the contrary is expressly forbidden, to frank for other persons, not members. Here, then, we have a two-fold violation of law, not only in forwarding larger packages than the law permits, but in virtually assigning the limited use of a privilege which it was never intended should be transferable. It is equivalent, to a certain extent, to franking by proxy, and operates to the same extent, as a direct fraud upon the revenue—the assignee (for we can call him nothing else) being clothed, to all intents and purposes, with the privileges of the assignor, without in the least infringing on such privilege in the hands of the rightful possessor. It is not simply the transfer of a franchise, but investing another with the like franchise. The execution of the scheme, is also fraudulent on the face of it—and in proportion to the extent to which it is carried, abstracts so much from the revenues of the department.

But the facts speak for themselves. They develop the extent of that organized system of operations by which the Bank is struggling, through the aid of its instruments in congress, to gloss over its corruptions, and blind the people as to its real character. They exhibit the nature of the efforts against which the democracy have to contend, and will, as they ought, incite them to corresponding exertions. Every fresh exposure of the enormities of the Bank and its retainers, can only serve to rouse the people to a keener conviction of its dangerous character, and still greater efforts to put an end to its existence.

New Bank Investigation.—The Finance Committee of the Senate have been constituted a Committee of Investigation, to examine into the affairs of the Bank of the United States during the recess of the Senate.—This Committee is composed of two BANK DEBTORS, and two of its nullifying allies, viz. Messrs. Webster and Ewing, Tyler and Mangum. Mr. Wilkins was the fifth member; but his place was vacated by acceptance of the Mission to Russia. How ready the majority of the Senate were to fill up the vacancy in the Post Office Committee with Mr. Southard, when Mr. Clayton declined serving! Then the object was to blacken the Post Office Department! But none of them stepped forward to propose filling the vacancy in the Finance Committee. It would not do to put another of their own party on the Committee; and to put one Jackson man upon it, would embarrass, if not defeat, the sole object of this movement, which is to white-wash the Bank.

What an insult is this movement to the House of Representatives, and the American People! The Bank has shut its doors upon the Committee of the House; the President and Directors have refused to be sworn to give testimony; and they are now standing out in contempt of the authority of the People! Under these circumstances, a majority of the Senate, no doubt at the invitation of Mr. Biddle, send to Philadelphia a subversive Committee, on which there is not one friend of the administration, and to them the Bank is to open its doors and exhibit its books! Is there a man who expects any thing honest or fair from this proceeding? Is there a man who doubts that it is a mere contrivance between the majority of the Senate and the Bank, under pretence of investigation, to do something to retrieve the affairs of the institution from the ruin which is rushing down upon it?

The country will point at this Committee the finger of scorn and derision! Instead of aiding the Bank, this shameless proceeding will but accelerate its downward career.—Globe.

From the Albany Argus.

Whig Money.—It is very gratifying to see that Mr. Biddle, carrying out General Jackson's views in relation to a hard money currency, has recently emitted a copper coin from the U. S. Bank mint in Chesnut street. It must not only have a happy influence upon the prosperity of the country, in augmenting the supply of precious metals, but its execution is in the highest degree creditable to the Emperor's taste. On one side is the head of Gen. Jackson, with appropriate motto, and on the other a full length portrait of the Emperor himself, bristling with rage, and expressing his determination to try a "third rate" for the recharter of the Bank. Not being personally acquainted with him, I cannot speak of the accuracy of the likeness. His physiognomy appears to be a little "long favored," owing perhaps to its being "elongated" by some adverse votes in Congress—but care has been doubtless taken by his friends to make it, in all respects, characteristic of the original.

The steamboat Suffolk, was sold at auction this forenoon for $1800. She has recently been repaired at an expense of $2,500, originally cost at least $6000.—Mer. Jour.

Another Rural Sea Port.—The beautiful town of Newark, N. J., has been made a port of entry, and Archer Gilford, Esq. appointed Collector of the Customs.

The books of subscription to the new bank at Buffalo, closed on the 3d inst. when $1,213,000 were subscribed to a capital of $400,000.

Value of a French soldier's Brains.—A poor soldier at Brittany blew out his brains in consequence of losing fourteen francs at gambling.—N. Y. Trans.

Municipal.—At a meeting of the Mayor and Aldermen yesterday:

Petition of Charles F. Durant for leave to erect a suitable enclosure at the bottom of the Common, for the purpose of placing his apparatus to enable him to ascend in a balloon: referred to the Committee on the Common.

Communication was received from David Henshaw Esq. Collector of the port of Boston, stating that Congress has made an appropriation for building a beacon or monument on Deer Island Point, and asking leave of the city government to erect the same on the flats of said island, if it should be found necessary: referred to the Committee on Quarantine.

Painful Occurrences.—Intelligence from Saratoga Springs, furnishes us with several items of distressing events at that place.

On Tuesday last, the lady of Admiral Vansittart, died at that place, after an illness of a few hours. At the time, her son and two daughters were with her.—The Admiral, says the Gazette, had preceded his family to his new location, at Blanford, Upper Canada, to prepare for their reception, and could not have been advised of his wife's illness.

On the 4th of July, Mr. William Cook, a respectable merchant of Albany, died while seated at the dinner table. He was observed to feel full back his head, and was dead when those at the table took hold of him.—He had been ill for some time, with an affection about the region of the head. He was a man universally and deservedly esteemed, and his demise has caused general and deep regret.

On the same day, and in the same village, Eliakim Barker, and Mr. Soper, were dreadfully wounded by the discharge of a cannon with which they were firing a salute. Mr. Barker had one arm blown off and received a wound in his side. Mr. Soper had one hand blown off above his wrist, and the other near his elbow. A gentleman who was present, says—"I saw the mutilated fragments—one of the hands looked more like a piece of India rubber than human flesh."—N. Y. Com.

By a return laid before the House of Commons, on the motion of Mr. Leonard, it appears that in the course of last year, two hundred and forty-six persons were sentenced to death for robbery, of which number seven only were executed.
